SPEAKER CLAIMS ACCIDENT TOLLS STAGGERING NOW

Maintains Accident List Could Be Reduced Through Effort of Educators.

THREE METHODS NAMED

Instruction in Schools Named as Important Method in Cutting Toll.

LOUISVILLE, June 4.—It is possible for any city in the United States to reduce the number of its deaths from industrial accidents at least 80 percent; to reduce the number of deaths from automobile, railroad and street-car accidents by at least 60 percent; and to reduce the number of deaths from accidents in the home and in public places by at least 50 percent. It is possible to have 49,000 of the 80,000 lives lost through accidents in the United States each year.

This statement was made here today by C. W. Price, vice-president in charge of the Public Safety Division, Elliott Service Company, New York City, in an address before a joint meeting of the Louisville Board of Trade and the Transportation Club in connection with the opening of Louisville's Safety Week. The statement was based, Mr. Price said, on the experience of New York City, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Detroit and Washington.

"A careful study of the experience of these cities," Mr. Price told the business men of this city, "reveals the significant fact that there are three determining factors which are responsible for the success of any community public safety campaign. These three factors are:

Systematic daily safety instruction in the public schools; a continuous safety poster campaign on the streets, and an intensive safety education campaign in the daily press.

These three activities alone, if carried on permanently and conscientiously rather than for spectacular effects, are bound to result in radical reductions in the loss of life through accidents.

"One half of all that can be done in any community to reach the adult population will be done through the safety education of school children who carry the safety message home to their parents. This is the testimony of the men who have been most active in cities where successful safety work has been conducted. A definite plan for incorporating safety instruction in the present studies of public schools developed by Dr. E. George Payne, professor of Education of New York University has been used during the last year in thousands of schools with definite and remarkable success.

"The second determining factor in a successful community effort for the prevention of accidents is the visualization of safety on the street. The one difficult problem of safety campaigns is to sustain the interest day in and day out through the year. This can only be accomplished by visualizing safety so that the driver or the pedestrian at every turn will be reminded of safety. Washington during the past three months has worked out the first successful plan of accomplishing this through a continuous poster campaign. Slogans with a punch and a grip, a different one each month, are printed on large posters and displayed at the street intersections, at filling stations, on street cars, buses and taxicabs, in all school houses, public buildings and at entrances to factories. The first poster reads: 'The Reckless Driver is a Criminal.' The second: 'The Jay Walker is Taking a Short Cut to the Hospital.'—and the third: 'Better be Careful than Crippled.' The effectiveness of any safety poster campaign, however, is dependent entirely on permanence.

"The newspapers must be named as the third most effective medium through which every home can be reached daily with the safety message. The press can play a most important part in building up in the minds of the people a new sense of their obligation to cooperate in saving human life. In every community, however large or however small, safety instruction in the schools, the poster campaign on the streets and the continuous educational campaign through the newspapers can be conducted with equal success and at a nominal cost. The demand every where is for definite information regarding ways and means of conducting such a campaign and materials to use in carrying out the program. Such information and material is now easily available."

DEAD STUDENT'S MOTHER SCORES N. W. U. OFFICIALS

Mrs. J. L. Mount.

Mrs. J. L. Mount, mother of Leighton Mount, Northwestern university student whose body was found recently along the lake front in Chicago, complains bitterly of the alleged unfair treatment she has received from President Scott since the disappearance of her son. A grand jury will probe the cause of the boy's death, which is believed to have been due to hazing activities.

CHAUTAUQUA HAS MISSION FOR ADA

General Good of Public in Line of Endeavor for Entertainment.

In another article the spirit of America and Chautauqua are compared. The Premier program this year exemplifies in a definite way this spirit when viewed as a whole. A feature of this program is the "Boy's Series." This is a definite step in bringing home to the boys of the community their part in the community—and in the Chautauqua.

The Chautauqua should be of great value to the adolescent—if we can get him there. His mind is like a prowling wolf, hungry for facts, devouring everything in sight. The men who are featured on the "Boy's Series" all have something that those boys are interested in. There is enough entertainment of the right kind and plenty of educational material besides.

One thing cannot be stressed too much in America today: the glory of work and its importance for the young. Work is regarded as toil, where as work should be joy. The vital thing is to find the task that is a pleasure. If the Chautauqua can help in this, it has performed a great service.

The success of the Chautauqua in any community depends in large measure on the kind of response the community gives. The service and the program are there. And here is where the Chautauqua differs essentially from a show.

The Chautauqua has to do with the home, the family. While entertainment liberally mingles with inspirational and educational features it is always clean. The Chautauqua is doing a great work for the Nation and yet it is not subsidized—not even in war times.

The Chautauqua faces criticism sometimes because it has to have community cooperation to live. Shows do not. Shows have no one to answer to but the censor. The Chautauqua needs no censor and answers to the great body of the American people for what it is and always will be—a tremendous force for good over all of America.

The cost of the Chautauqua to the patron is less than the cost of any show—even a cheap one. The value of the Chautauqua to the patron is only measured by his willingness to profit by the constructive things he hears. No one has ever suffered in body or mind as a result of Chautauqua.

CLEAN SLATE TO START NEW YEAR ON CITY BUDGET

City Administration Weathers
Year of Improvement
Without Increase.

FEW INCREASES ASKED

Crisis Facing Schools in Lower Valuation of Taxable Property.

An increased financial budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be asked by the city administration, it was intimated this morning by Mayor W. H. Fisher and City Finance Commissioner Charlie Deaver.

With the exception of the fire department other city branches will seek a slight increase for maintenance during the coming year.

The growth of the city and necessary improvements and accommodations to take care of that growth will force an increased expenditure for the coming fiscal year.

The increase for the year is so small, however, that no hardship will be worked on city finances, Mayor Fisher said. In the water department, the greatest increase will be asked. This increase is necessary for the upkeep of the water mains from Byrds Mill principally, where water lines have deteriorated to such an extent that breaks are frequent and the cost of operation consequently increased.

The fire department will seek only a slight raise if any, it was indicated. The department is operating on a clockwork basis and with the equipment in perfect condition little money will be required to meet the demands of the department. Water hose and salaries are the large items in the expense of the department.

Police Department Supporting.
The police department is practically self-supporting. It was announced by Mayor Fisher. Fines collected on arrests by the department during the year practically offset the expense of the department, although the fines have decreased during the past three months. The police department is financed on a scheduled basis. Fines collections are reverted back to the city and used in financing the emergencies in other departments, while the salaries and maintenance of the department is operated with a strict budget from the city coffers.

The police department will ask an increase in the July budget of over $2,000 to further finance adequate police protection for Ada.

The custodian of the city hall, Mayor Fisher, will seek an increased budget to complete repairs started during the present fiscal year and insure the proper upkeep of the building during the next fiscal year.

Mayor Fisher stated this morning that the operation of the city government had progressed rapidly during the year. Several government features have been innovated and improvements in the material property of the city been secured without additional cost to the city taxpayer.

As the last month of the fiscal year began its grind, the city budget seemed sufficient to carry the city expenditures for the year without embarrassment to the city treasury.

All departments had weathered the year's expenses with strict economy evident in the necessary improvements. The police and water departments, brought in funds for the handling of city financial expenditures.

Crisis in Schools.
The city school administration while under the jurisdiction of the city board of education and not under control of the city government group is a city institution and receives its budget direct from the funds available through the taxes obtained in the school district and likewise will start the fiscal year, July 1.

That a crisis in the school situation is prevalent is a predominant indication at the present time with property valuations in Ada lowered considerably by the lessening of the bulk of property taxable.

J. E. Hickman, superintendent of city schools, stated Monday morning that an increase would be well come for the coming year to take care of the increased population. While none is anticipated, because of the valuation proposition, schools would be placed at a serious handicap should their budget be lowered.

The county board of equalization, which meets today, is not expected to increase the valuation of property listed in the Ada school district.

The city school administration operated in a cash basis during the past year.

TRIAL OF LUNDIN SWINGS IN SESSION

Chicago Political Boss Held
With Others for School Board Fraud.

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, June 4.—The trial of Fred Lundin, former congressman and known as the dictator of the William H. Thompson faction of the Republican party, and 20 co-defendants charged with conspiracy to defraud the Chicago school board of more than $1,000,000 got under way today. Six weeks were spent in selecting the jury.

As the attorneys of both sides appeared primed for their opening statements, one defendant, Louis Piquette, former city prosecutor in the Thompson administration, was granted his freedom. Piquette had formally demanded trial at four successive court terms and it had not been granted. Under the law his counsel declared he had been denied an early trial by jury and Judge Charles A. McDonald discharged him.

Lundin, often referred to as the "silent boss" while Mayor Thompson was in office, and who styled himself a "poor Swede," and 23 others, including school board officers, members and others holding prominent position in the Thompson administration, together with persons who had dealings with the school board, were named in the indictment returned by the grand jury which began its investigations last August.

DEATH OF MAN STILL MYSTERY TO FRIENDS

(By the Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, June 4.—Efforts made to solve the mystery surrounding the death of Guy A. Moore, 39, whose mutilated body was found on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad tracks near here yesterday proved unavailing today. Mr. Moore was a member of the firm of Moore, Lawless Grain Co. and former president of the local board of trade. A train had passed over his body.

Three theories were advanced, murder, suicide and accident. C. W. Lawless, Moore's business partner, said he believed Moore was murdered and that robbery was the motive. He scouted the suicide theory, declaring that Moore was always in good spirits, his home life ideal, and that he had had no recent serious financial reverses.

BARRED FROM SCHOOL SOCIETY ON BOOZE CHARGE
WESTWOOD, N. J., June 4.—Barred by the board of education from all social functions of the Westwood high school because he is alleged to have had a flask of liquor in his hip pocket in the junior prom, Aubrey Green, a student, has retained an attorney in an effort to have the board's order rescinded. He denies that he possessed any liquor.

Hammer Murderess Claims Carson Sawed Bars to Freedom.

(By Central Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—The hour for the showdown of the "hammer slayer" is at hand.

Since her arrest in Honduras Mrs. Clara Phillips has declared that she will provide a sensation in her fight for a new trial on the charge of beating to death Mrs. Alberta Meadows.

But aside from that threat—to create a sensation—she has refused steadfastly to reveal her plans.

She has declared that she did not kill the Meadows woman; that another woman did; that she was kidnapped from the Los Angeles county jail.

It is believed that her threatened revelation—if they come—will deal with her escape as well as with her version of the actual slaying of Mrs. Meadows.

The nerve of the "hammer slayer" broke for the first time while she was enroute to San Quentin prison on the train. For a time she remained in her berth and sobbed so loudly that passengers were attracted.

Just what Clara's threatened sensation will be is merely a matter of conjecture but it is believed that she will endeavor to prove that another than herself killed Mrs. Meadows—a woman who testified for the state at her trial.

The escaped and recaptured "tiger woman" said that her long flight was made because of circumstances over which she had no control and not necessarily because of her desire for freedom.

"Since my capture in Tegucigalpa, I have promised the world a sensation which will be the means of establishing my freedom," she added. "A great part of that statement will tell exactly why I climbed to freedom through those iron bars, sawed by Jesse Carson, with whom I made my flight."

Mrs. Phillips refused to divulge anything further than this.

"And if there is such a thing as justice," she added, "I will be a free woman."

"Do I love him?" she declared referring to her husband. "He is my all. I love him with a devotion that is as true and sincere as that of any woman, and it is mutual."

She declared that she detested Carson and had never been the least attracted to him.

"What if I did flee for freedom after he made my escape possible? That too will be cleared up when I make that promised revelation. Although he passed me as his wife wherever we went, I was always true to Armour."

When told that the world was asking where she received the money to finance her long flight, Clara replied that very little was spent that was her savings and what Carson obtained by pawning her jewelry.

After Big Holdup

(By the Associated Press)

PEKIN, June 4.—Enrollment of the Shantung bandits into the national army is proceeding at Tsao Chwang, according to advices received at the American legation today. Those of the bandits who did not desire to become soldiers are slipping away leaving their rifles behind.

Members of the legation feel that it will be only a matter of days until the eight foreigners still held captive are released, the negotiation being expected to result successfully within a short time.

ENROLMENT HITS NEW RECORD HERE

All Plans Complete Here for Student Mixer on College Campus.

Enrollment at the college took a sudden spurt today and it is estimated that probably a hundred and fifty students will enter school during the week in addition to those already enrolled.

The second assembly of the term was held this morning. The meeting was opened with singing by the student body, led by Miss Ballard, music director for the summer school. Following the music President Linscheid made a number of announcements regarding the work of the term.

A big student-faculty mixer, an annual affair, will be held on the athletic field this evening at seven o'clock if rain does not prevent. The program will be featured by games, music and refreshments and is arranged to give the strangers here an opportunity to get acquainted with each other and with the faculty of the college. Miss Anna Weaver Jones will be in charge of the activities.

Miss Scott was introduced to the students at the assembly this morning. She will be here for some weeks in religious work, and will direct her activities largely to the organization of an active Y. W. C. A. while here. She is a special worker, and will be available for consultation for all girls attending the school, especially those who intend to take up religious work after leaving school.

Miss Fay Shannon, state health worker, explained to the students the character of the work being attempted by the health workers over the United States. She told how the health crusade works, and how teachers can do a great work along the line of physical improvement of the pupils in their charge. She will be here for two days to consult with those who may take up health work among the schools of the state.

BOND ELECTION WILL NOT BE CALLED NOW

Though no official action had been taken up to 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, it was indicated at the court house that the County Commissioners would not call a bond election for the purpose of getting funds to build bridges and repair roads at this time.

The course of procedure, it is suggested, will be to do just what work is absolutely necessary at this time, and pay for the work out of funds which are available or issue funding bonds to cover the indebtedness.

Several citizens appeared before the commissioners and presented their views of the matter, some urging a bond issue. It was the prevailing opinion of those present that a bond issue at this time would not be popular and would not carry.

WILSON FOLLOWS ARMED GUARD TO COLLEGE OFFICE

Red Flag Waves Over Campus
Before Guard Takes Token From Pole.

KEYS TURNED OVER

Esckridge Resents Military
Invasion of Stillwater to Take Office.

(By the Associated Press)

STILLWATER, June 4.—George Wilson, the center of one of the bitterest political controversies in the history of Oklahoma, was today directing the affairs of the A. & M. college here as its president.

Seated at his desk in the president's office, he devoted most of the day to familiarizing himself with the details of his new position. Five officers of the Oklahoma national guard, who accompanied him here yesterday on orders of Governor Walton, lounged about his office or strolled in the corridors.

The first convocation of the summer school was held this morning, but the new president did not attend. The meeting was presided over by Hubert Atterson, dean of the school of education.

Wilson declined to be interviewed.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 4.—

George Wilson, formerly non-partisan league organizer in Kansas and North Dakota, who yesterday installed himself as president of the Oklahoma A. & M. college at Stillwater with the assistance of five national guard officers in plain clothes, was expected to return to Oklahoma City today for a meeting of the state board of agriculture.

The final installation step of Wilson came yesterday when accompanied by his military escort he appeared in Stillwater and demanded the keys of the college in the name of Governor J. C. Walton. President J. B. Esckridge surrendered them after he is said to have communicated with John A. Whitehurst, president of the board of agriculture. Esckridge's term as president was not to have expired until July 1, while Wilson's appointment two weeks ago was effective June 1.

The orange and black colors of the A. & M. college floated from atop the campus flag pole today, placed there by Maj. C. W. Daley, member of the military escort, when the party had found the college colors beneath a red flag atop of the pole.

Esckridge Hands Over Keys
Proceeding immediately to the office of E. E. Brewer, superintendent of buildings, the officers demanded the keys of the institution in the name of Governor Walton. Brewer referred them to President J. B. Esckridge, and General Markham then called upon Earl C. Albright, Esckridge's private secretary, respecting the demand.

"You have come to the wrong place," Albright said, "you must get the keys from Dr. Esckridge." The latter communicated with J. A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture, who advised him to hand over the keys as requested. Esckridge then gave the keys to Markham.

'Swashbuckling' Resented
"I deeply resent this show of military authority, and deem it an outrage to the people of Stillwater and of the state," Esckridge said. "Such a display is absolutely uncalled for and I hope you will report my statement to your swashbuckling governor!"

Dr. Esckridge said he had heard a rumor that Wilson intended to slip into Stillwater unexpectedly and that he had hurried back to the college that he might relinquish authority to him in the proper manner.

J. A. Tolman Resigns
Besides General Markham and Major Daley, the escort included Major Joe Campbell, Major Abe Herskowitz and Captain A. H. Ferguson. It was not stated how long the guard would be maintained at the institution.

Dr. J. A. Tolman, professor of ancient languages, announced his resignation from the faculty Sunday afternoon.

"My reason is that my ideals of education, government, character and of American principles are so thoroughly out of harmony with George Wilson that I could not consistently teach in an institution over which he was president," he said.

Students Better Equipped
"Think of a situation wherein half of the students of an institution are better qualified in an education than the president," he said. (Continued on Page Three)

Reconsidering the Matter

By CLARA DELAFIELD

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS less Howard Field than the other woman who was the cause of Isobel's finally arriving at her decision. For a period which seemed an eternity she had slaved for Howard Field, wearing out her youth, her beauty—washing, cooking, ironing for him. But the taunts of the other woman had become unbearable.

Isobel had had plenty of opportunities for lovers of her own. She was still beautiful. But she had stuck doggedly to her work; she was sacrificing the best years of her life—ah, that was the worst of it—for those who failed either to appreciate her services or to understand her nature.

There was Howard's old mother, a frequent visitor to the house, always by her side, even in the kitchen, grumbling and scolding. She was a servant in the house, and they treated her with even less consideration than a servant.

And then the other woman—how Isobel hated her! She had seen Howard kissing her furtively when he thought nobody saw. He paraded his love for her openly.

Only the child remained, the one link that bound her to the home. Isobel and Dora adored each other. "I love you better than Daddy," the child had often said. Isobel always remembered that. It was Dora who had held her, an unwilling slave, in the Field home so long.

Now even that love was not strong enough to break Isobel's determination. She was leaving the house, never to see any of them again. Only that evening Howard had sworn at her—because of some little flaw in the cooking. Cooking! Was that all a woman was made for—to cook for a man?

No, she was going, and she was going to a man who would show her the proper appreciation. She was not in love with Donald Dugan. His attitude toward her had always been one of tender chivalry. Once, when she had sobbingly told him of her troubles, he had urged her to leave Howard forever.

"Come to me, Isobel," he had said, "and I will protect you. You shall never shed another tear."

"What will people say?" It was the old question, the old fear that links people together in unwilling partnership.

"Isobel, the world will say that you have acted rightly. That monster has no claim on you. You have toiled for him thanklessly. Come to me, Isobel!"

She had half promised, and Howard's treatment of her that evening had been the culmination. She was going to Donald.

Softly she packed her bag in her room, putting into it a few little essentials—her dress, her wrap, a cherished toilet service—that was about all that she was taking from the Field home.

It was well past midnight. She crept into the passage, listening fearfully. The way to freedom now lay open. But suddenly the thought of Dora came to her. Suddenly she realized that she could not go forever without a parting glance at the child.

She listened outside Dora's door. No sound came from within. Softly she opened it and entered.

Dora lay on her back, sleeping the flushed, dewy, innocent sleep of childhood. Her long lashes lay delicately upon her cheeks. The sight of the slumbering child aroused every instinct of motherhood within her.

Isobel bent down and kissed the bluish-rose cheek. Dora stirred faintly in her sleep and smiled. "Mummy!" she whispered.

The word was like a dagger in Isobel's heart. She clutched her breast in anguish. She looked at Dora. And suddenly she realized that she could not go.

She could not go. The mother instinct had proved too strong for her at the last.

But as she turned back the door of the Fields' room opened softly. Howard Field appeared in his dressing gown—Howard and the other woman!

Isobel uttered a cry. With a fierce exclamation Howard advanced toward her.

"Stealing off from my house like a thief in the night, Isobel! Is this the way you repay me for my kindness? Listen! Stay with me! Let us understand each other. I know it's Donald Dugan who is enticing you. We've been talking things over. Stay with us, and we'll raise your wages ten dollars a month and send out some of the wash. And you can have the use of the car on Sunday afternoons."

"Deed, I will, sub," answered Isobel happily. "It's that old wash gives me such a backache, that's why I was going."

An Isobel turned back to her own room.

"Blue Stockings"

Even today one hears of persons designated as "blue stockings." In olden times the term meant women who sacrificed their characteristic excellence to learning, or what they thought was learning. A hundred years ago the women of England had evening assemblies where the fair sex might participate in conversation with famous literary men. One of the most eminent was Doctor Stellingfleet, who habitually wore blue stockings. Such was the excellence of his conversation that his occasional absence was felt as a great loss, and the ladies said: "We can do nothing without the blue stockings." Thus came the phrase, and by degrees its title was established.

Tris Speaker is Two-Base Swat Champion

Two glimpses of Tris Speaker.

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Tris Speaker, center fielding manager of the Cleveland Indians, hasn't hogged much of the stage in the home run circuits being staged these days. But Speaker has hung up one swatting record that Babe Ruth, Cy Williams, Ken Williams and the other modern circuit clouters have been shooting at with no success.

That is the two-base record. The Gray Eagle has slammed out more doubles in his league career than any other man who ever has played in the American league. When Speaker stepped into forty-six two-base whacks last year he ran his grand total up to 545. Before Tris added that near half hundred to his list the one and only Napoleon Lajoie had held the title as a double swatter, with 513 chalked up in his brilliant career as a batter.

Latest records show that Speaker has added eight more doubles to this list and there is no one playing in the American league these days who can equal his record this season.

That Spoke should be the one to hang up such a record is interesting. He ranks as one of the best hitters in the game—has held the league title. But science has played a greater part in his hitting than brute swatting strength. His worth as a batter lies mainly in his ability to hit timely—to place sure hits in vacant corners when clean hits were needed to put his team into the running or sew up ball game.

Spoke ought to hang up a record that the trusty batters will shoot at for some seasons as he shows no sign yet of losing his keen batting eye or of slipping in his placing to the point where he will have to bench himself.

World Conference Y.M.C.A. Reports Countries Fame Laws Benefitting Boys

(By the Associated Press)

PORTSMOUTH, Austria, June 3.—Though the war stopped the progress of the world in many directions, it has nevertheless resulted in an awakened conscience and progressive legislation for the protection and reformation of boyhood to the Second World Conference of Y. M. C. A. workers with boys, published June 3. The report is based on a study of conditions in 35 countries.

"The newer countries of the world," according to H. Wallace Souther of South Africa, chairman of the commission, "are legislating in accordance with the new spirit of penology and the conclusions of psychological research, and are striving to prevent the growth in their midst of the horrors of the older countries."

Approximately 70 per cent of the boys in the United States, according to the commission, live under laws which compel school attendance between the ages of 8 and 16. America's experience is frequently quoted and the tendency to project free education forward into the college grade is marked as noteworthy. The report sums up the educational obligations upon government as follows:

The ideal to be aimed at and steadily worked for is that up to the age of 18 years it shall be made possible for a boy's energies to be absorbed not by work but by education—an education that strengthens the body, develops the mind, equips him not only for earning a livelihood, but also for community service, and thus lays intellectual and moral foundations of good citizenship.

"Christian nations must certainly resist the materialism that would sacrifice the development of personality to the supposed necessities of industry, and must not be satisfied until the law brings within reach of the poorest boy the highest education."

International boundaries and race characteristics have a minor bearing on juvenile delinquencies, the report indicated. Striking similarities are revealed by the statistics of all nations.

Theft is the big outstanding offense of juveniles whether in Japan, Italy, or America. "We are convinced," the commission states, "that absolute physical want is probably the most common cause of theft by boys of all nationalities. A very large proportion of juvenile convictions is for theft of food by undernourished boys."

The report advocates raising the age of criminal majority from 16 to 18 in order that a larger group may profit by the remedial measures already in force for juveniles. The commission further says:

"The conclusions of modern psychological research must be fully explored. Any treatment of boy delinquents must have respect to the individual personality offender. He may be put on probation subject to treatment, and the treatment needed may be entirely medical. The decision must aim at a solution of his peculiar problem with a view to his recovery. The methods of psycho-analysis should, whenever possible, be used, but only by skilled men and women. Close observation in school of boys with tendencies to wrong-doing would prevent many of them arriving at the police courts."

Recommendations of the commission include a call for the establishment by the World's Alliance of Young Men's Christian Associations of "an International Boy's Committee, whose work shall be to study the problems of boys' life in all the countries, to collect particulars of all legislation affecting the legal status of boyhood that is passed from time to time, to keep all National Councils periodically advised of such legislation and any other reform movements in progress, and to take whatever steps may be expedient to secure to the boys of any nation adequate legal protection."

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

In olden times the principal medium for the distribution of information concerning an entire community was the "Town Crier". He was an institution in the land as important as any of his time for his was an important duty.

Messages were sent over the land by carriers mounted on fleet-footed steeds. If they were messages of state, the Crier was given the gist at the town hall and started on his rounds crying his news that all might hear. If a man had goods that he wished to find a market for, he might avail himself of the services of the Crier and make known the quality of his wares. At all hours of the day or night the cry, "Hear Ye! Hear ye!" could be heard resounding through the streets of the towns of long ago.

Today, the CLASSIFIED COLUMNS of the medoren newspaper are the CRIERS of countless thousands who have to sell, who wish to buy, who want employment or need employees. Thousands read the message simultaneously; there is some one in that throng that can satisfy that want. Thus a service is rendered at a minimum of effort and expense that might not be possible otherwise.

GAINS 22 POUNDS BY USING TANLAC

Mrs. Seiter Declares Famous Medicine Restored Her and Six Others in Family.

"Before I took Tanlac I was pale and thin, and weighed only a hundred and ten pounds, but now I weigh a hundred and thirty-two pounds and never felt better," declared Mrs. Joe Seiter, wife of a well-known farmer of Route 2, Norman, Okla.

"Seven members of our family have taken Tanlac with fine results. I gave it to my little boy eleven years old after he had the flu and he is now sturdy and well."

"I suffered terribly from indigestion for years, and for days at a time was so weak and nervous I couldn't do my housework. I had no appetite, couldn't get any restful sleep, and it seemed I was doomed to sickness the rest of my days."

"But thanks to the anlac treatment I am now strong and well and can do my housework with ease. We always keep Tanlac in the house, and I will never cease to praise it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

Shriners on Rush in Attendance at Shrine Convention

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, June 4.—A big rush of Shriners into Washington was on today with the formal opening of their annual convention set for tomorrow when the first big parade on the program will take place on Pennsylvania avenue between the capitol and the White House.

Two ceremonies, neither definitely a part of the Shrine convention, but both incident to it, were among the preliminary events today with President Harding attending both.

One was the dedication of the "Zero Mile Stone" erected on the walk south of the White House, and the other the opening in Potomac park of a reproduction of the boyhood home of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home."

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IS SET BY BOYS AT PLAY

(By the Associated Press) CANAAN, N. H., June 4.—Fire that wiped out 42 buildings in this city Saturday, causing two deaths and a property loss of $500,000, was started by a four-year-old boy playing with matches in a barn according to the theory accepted by the authorities today.

The boy said he had accidentally set fire to a bale of hay. The barn was in flames shortly after the boy and his companion had run out and a 40-mile wind swept fire the entire length of the village.

One Killed in Storm.

(By the Associated Press) REGINA, Sask., June 4.—One man was killed, several cottages were blown to pieces and 600 miles of farm lands covered with hail and torrential rain last night in this province. The dead man, Wasyl E. Zowie, was struck by lightning.

"Masters of Men" Story of Sea, to Be Offered Here

"Masters of Men," by Morgan Robertson, the world's most noted writer of sea stories, is to be shown at the American Theatre next Wednesday. Critics have unanimously acclaimed this picture as the greatest sea story ever screened. The pictureization by C. Graham Baker has retained loyally the atmosphere of the novel by America's master teller of sea stories and Vitagraph, who offers it, has provided a lavish production, with an all star cast.

"Masters of Men" tells the story of an American boy who accepted the shame of another's crime that he might protect the girl he loved from humiliation. Branded in his home town as a thief the lad runs away and joins the United States Navy. While on leave he is shanghaied and suffers the brutality accorded to men before the mast on board a four master sailing the Spanish Main. How he effects his escape and aids in the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago provides a thrilling drama which holds interest through out every foot of the screening.

There are four principal parts, as the story involves the love affairs of four young people. Earle Williams, one of the most popular stars of the screen, plays Lieutenant Breen, the officer who assists Dick Halpin (played by Cullen Landis) to win back honor and manhood. Pretty Alice Calhoun who has been starred in many Vitagraph productions and Wanda Hawley, long a popular star, play the chief women's role.

It is a picture of types and of vivid realism. The selection of types and of vivid realism. The selection of types is said to have been perfect, particularly of those actors who play the brutal, hard fighting men who comprise the crew of the "Mary Earl." Dick Sutherland and Jack Curtis, who play the mate and captain of the four master, are known to fans as the most brutal looking actors in motion pictures. They give realism to Morgan Robertson's description of the brutes who made life a hell for men before the mast.

"Masters of Men" should provide excellent entertainment at the American Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday.

It was conjectured Wilson will appear before the board of agriculture which meets at the capitol Monday.

Tolman, spokesman of the delegation which called at the governor's office last week, said in his letter of resignation, addressed to President Eskridge:

"My reason for resigning is that my ideals of education, of government, of character and of American principles are so thoroughly out of harmony with those of Mr. Wilson that I could not teach in an institution over which he is president."

"Furthermore, I regard a man who has less education than half of the student body absolutely unfit for the presidency. I also regard his methods of obtaining the presidency thoroughly out of harmony with the ethics of the teaching profession that I do not see how any self-respecting teacher could remain on his faculty."

Several other resignations of faculty members had been previously announced.

President Eskridge announced in an unofficial statement that he plans to stump the state to "tell the people how George Wilson attained the presidency of the college."

Will a woman's riding breeches be the cause of the overturn of a government? Apparently trivial incidents have sometimes produced great results, and now it is said that trouble is brewing in Turkey because of the western ideas of Kemal Pasha, the dictator, as exemplified by the costume of his really up-to-date wife. No longer do the women of Turkey hide their faces behind veils and no longer are they kept virtual prisoners in harems. They are imbued with western ideas and they have the sanction of Kemal, the man who put Turkey back on the map after she had been about wiped off by the war. It is said that the old timers in Turkey, and they are many, do not take to these western notions and that they disapprove most heartily of the new styles of dress, especially the riding attire of Kemal's wife. According to their ideas this is unscriptural, being in direct conflict with their interpretation of the Koran and Turkish traditions. It is said that they are growing louder in their expressions of condemnation of Kemal and his western ways and government system and some observers predict that within two years he will be deposed and the nation drift back into the old channels. As reaction inevitably follows any sort of radical action, it is entirely possible that a counter-revolution may sweep the man of the hour into obscurity before he has completed the gigantic mission he has undertaken. He has succeeded in bluffing all the great powers of Europe, but this may not help him to hold onto his power when once more the Turks feel safe from foreign aggression.

The death of "Stump" Ashby removes another man widely known in his day, but of whom recent years very little has been heard. In the palmy days of populism in the '90's Ashby was nationally known as one of the leaders of the party. He made a race or two for office but as the party was never able to achieve anything more than local successes, he was never elected. After the populist died, Ashby came to the Indian Territory and at the advent of statehood was elected to the legislature from Marshall county. Failing of re-election, he moved to Pushmataha county and again entering politics, was elected to the legislature two or three times. However, it is to the old time Texans to whom he was best known. During the lean years of the '90's the populist party made considerable headway and carried on some vigorous campaigns. Where the fighting was thickest Ashby, Gore and Cyclone Davis were always to be found and the Democratic party came in for many severe lambastings at their hands.

Governor Smith wrote a 4,000 word explanation and defense of his action in signing the bill repealing the New York state law for enforcement of prohibition, but he will need more words than that to justify his action in the minds of the voters if he again becomes a candidate. The first move in his favor will doubtless be an endeavor to make him the Democratic nominee for the presidency next year, but with the two-thirds rule in force his chances will be extremely slim. In 1920 Governor Edwards of New Jersey made a strenuous effort to win the nomination for the presidency on a wet platform but made no headway.

We have little patience with the way some people have of denouncing scientists who are only seeking the truth, accusing them of trying to destroy religion. When all the truth is known religion and science will be found in perfect accord, for both had the same origin. The trouble is that a great many truths have been only half uncovered and the average person is unable to figure out just what it will look like when fully brought to light.

There is still hope for the conceited guy who admits that perhaps there are a few things he might learn from others, but when he decides that his knowledge takes in the entire universe, he is hopeless.

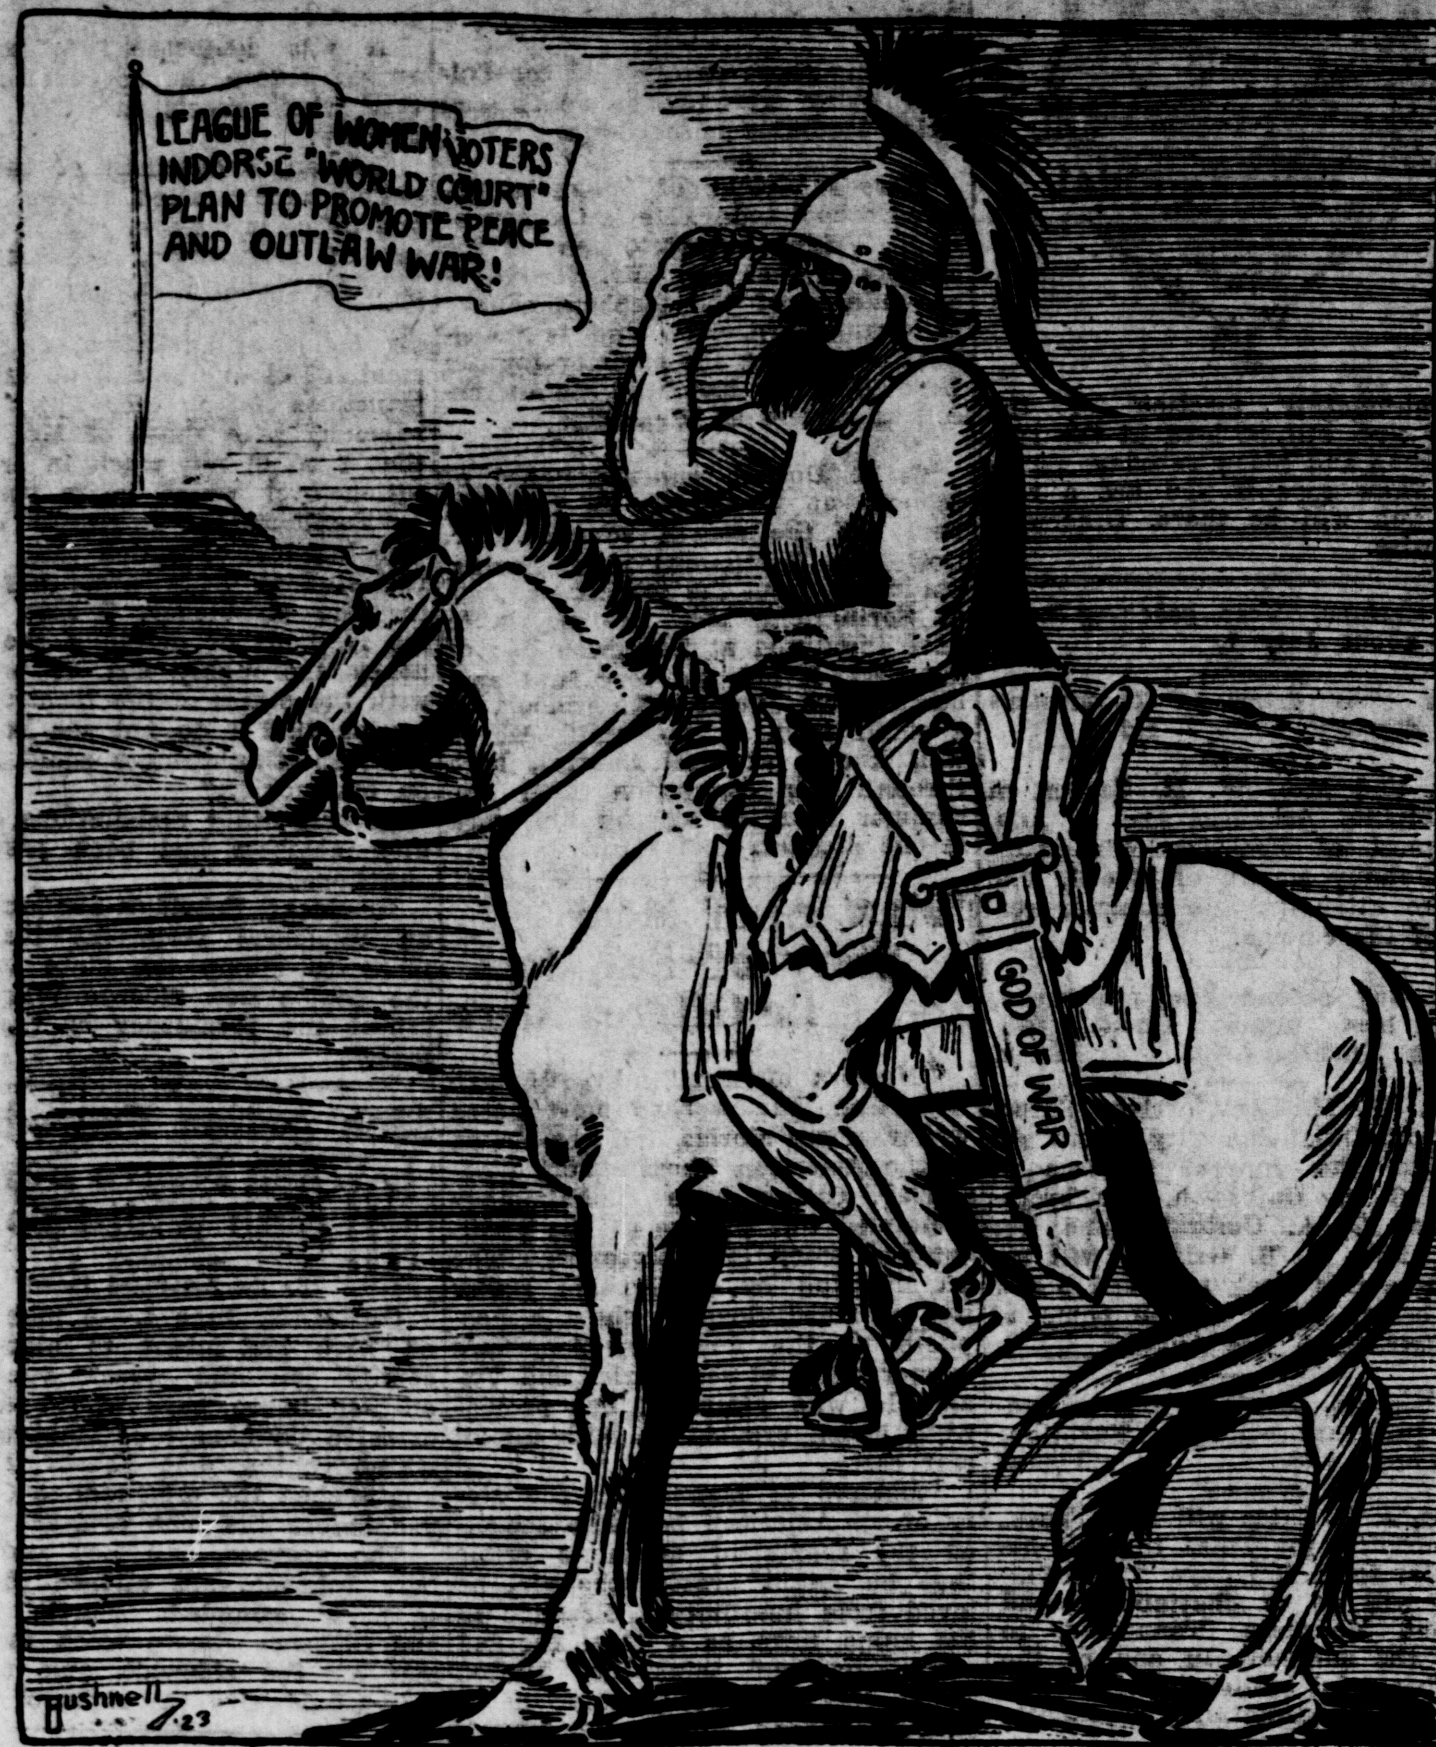

Evidently de Valera's orders to his men to stop the war in Ireland is being obeyed. No assassinations or incendiary fire has been reported in more than a week.

And now President Gomez of Venezuela is under fire by some writers who have traveled through that country and observed conditions. About 20 years ago President Castro left for a trip to Europe and as soon as he was well started on his journey Gomez, the vice-president, seized the reins of power and has held them ever since. Possession is about ten points of law in those Latin-American countries, since bullets and not ballots are what count in gaining and holding office.

It is reported that atheism is making considerable headway in Germany. Before the war the Germans prided themselves on being the partners of the Almighty, senior partners at that, but perhaps subsequent events convinced them of their error.

Just how strong President Harding believes in starting charity at home is now being tested. His home town is bankrupt and asking him to find some means of relief.—Watt-saga Republican.

"HOW ARE THE MIGHTY FALLEN!" ONCE A POPULAR GOD—NOW THEY WANT TO "OUTLAW" HIM

Story of Willard's Comeback Tale of Eight Wasted Years

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The story of Jess Willard's remarkable comeback, indicated by his knockout victory over the younger Floyd Johnson, is the story of eight wasted years.

Willard has not proved conclusively that he is in shape to beat Jack Dempsey. But Jess has shown that he threw away the one golden chance of his lifetime to win money and fame.

The day of big coin for fighters dawned about the time Willard became heavyweight champion of the world by licking Jack Johnson to a frazzle April 5, 1915, at Havana. The woods were full of "logical contenders"—white hopes in the bud. Willard could have named his own figures for short or long battles with these men.

But his hatred of the fight game, his dislike for publicity and his lack of ambition, ruled. He passed up these chances. He chose the easier way of putting his newly-made fortune into a circus and leisurely traveling about with it. What boxing he did was burlesque—before glibbie circus goers.

The years rolled by. Loomed up finally on the horizon one man Willard might well fear. The public was tired of Willard's lack of interest in the sport. They wanted a fighting champion. Jess, with the memory of fortunes lost through his failure to fight, risked his title for one reason only—to get the huge sum offered for the title. He didn't train seriously. The title meant nothing to him then. He was a sorry figure that sultry afternoon at Toledo. A big hunk of fat. The public was glad to see him lose.

But the loss of the title and the consequent demand at exorbitant prices for Dempsey's services awakened the big Kansas.

When he announced he was training diligently for a comeback people laughed at him for months.

The derision worried not Mr. Willard. Skeptics refused to consider him until he stepped into the ring with Johnson.

They saw then a new Willard—the Willard who ought to have been in those eight years. The flabby jowls he carried from within a few months after his fight with Johnson were gone. Missing also was the flabby paunch and upper legs he carried at Toledo. His hair was gray and he moved a bit slower, perhaps, due to age, but the condition was that of a man ten years younger than Willard.

The big day may have gone never to come again. Willard may not get a chance at Dempsey even if he beats Luis Firpo June 30 and one or two other heavies.

But he will have verified the faith of a scattering few in his worth as a fighter. And he will have given the public cause to speculate on what he might have done in those eight years he wasted.

"THE WORKING CLASS"

(Eufaula Journal)

Who is the "Working class?"

In the phrase of socialistic propagandists, this term is supposed to refer mostly to manual laborers, mechanics and others who earn a daily or weekly wage.

These elements of the people, however, are not the only ones who work. There are many people who work with their brains, who would like to know why they are excluded from the working class. Teachers, for instance, have as nervous and exhausting a job as any there is. When the mechanic quits his daily task, he leaves the care of his job behind him. But the teacher must carry his papers home to correct and often spends his evenings preparing for the next day's labors.

A man who has the responsibility for a business usually works harder than the men he employs. While his workers are laying aside their daily cares, the manager must plan and think how he shall get his orders, please the public, systematize his production and keep up with competitors.

Many business men lie awake nights as they question how they are going to meet the notes that are coming due and what they shall do to drum up trade in quarters where it seems to be falling off.

The socialistic conception think that the world is divided into two classes, the idle rich and the workers and that the former live by exploiting and cheating and taking advantage of the latter.

While many wealthy people do take advantage of those less fortunate, yet as a whole the people who make a success of business have to put their whole brains and effort into their job, or they lose out. It is not often a man can loaf and conduct a business successfully. The business men of any community are entitled to be considered members of the "Working Class," and some other kind of term ought to be invented to draw the distinction between employers and employed.

THE DRIVE FOR BETTER HOMES

(Star Telegram)

The idea of directing the attention of the people in a concerted way to the thought of "Better Homes" is in keeping with the true spirit of progress. And it can not fail to bear fruit abundantly.

For when one comes to think of it, all of the varied and complex activities of our material civilization are directed primarily toward that end—The providing of all of us with better homes.

For what else in a material way are we laboring together if not for that?

A home—and all that a home means—is the goal toward which every man labors and it is in an effort to provide a higher degree of comfort for ourselves that we labor together as a people.

To stimulate the thought of men and women on this matter, to induce them to think concretely and in particulars about it, and to arouse a definite desire for better homes is to implant in the breast of men and women an ambition of the highest order and to assist in translating that ambition into achievement.

A man who achieves a better home for himself and family not only attains to higher ground for himself; he also builds his community and contributes to the progress of the Nation itself.

The "Better Homes" campaign, therefore, is more than merely an effort on the part of people who have goods, materials and services to sell to induce people to buy.

It is that, to be sure, and frankly so.

But it is also a movement in keeping with the true spirit of progress, both for the individual and the community.

ENID.—Deputy Court Clerk Ted Miller was early at the office one day this week. But he found three couples waiting to secure marriage licenses. It was announced that 49 licenses were issued in May and but 12 divorce petitions were filed in the month here.

BEAUTY TYPES ARE WELL CONTRASTED IN PHOTOPLAY

Lentrice Joy, Nita Naldi and Paul, the Gavon in "You Can't Fool Your Wife."

For contrast in feminine pulchritude and temperament, few motion pictures recently produced can, by any stretch of the imagination, equal George Melford's latest Paramount picture, "You Can't Fool Your Wife," which comes to the McSwain theatre next Monday and in which the three principal female roles are played by Lentrice Joy, Nita Naldi and Pauline Garon.

Miss Joy, as Edith McBride, is the trusting wife, charming and ingenuous, yet intuitive to the last degree. Her particular type of beauty, with her soft brown eyes and dark brown hair, gives just the necessary sympathy to the role of the modern wife, troubled and tormented by a millionaire husband who has reached the so-called dangerous age.

Miss Naldi is the siren de luxe in the picture—a polished beauty, wife of an eminent surgeon, who seeks social conquests to further her husband's practice. Her raven black hair and alluring eyes produce the desired effect when she sets out to annex a man to her long list of victims.

Miss Garon, chic, blonde, diminutive, is the flapper of eighteen, but possessing a sophistication that would be a credit to a woman of fifty. She bobs in and out of the picture on a breeze of spontaneity that is a delightful contrast to the action of the other two characters in the story.

With three such types there is little wonder that Lewis Stone, Paul McAllister and John Daly Murphy, who play the three principal characters opposite, should be hopelessly entangled in a domestic drama.

OKMULGEE.—The local chamber of commerce and the retail merchants of this city have pledged to supply seed to replant all crops washed out in the county by recent rains, in case the farmers are not able to buy their own seed for replanting. Receiving Good water, have left much of the richest land of the county bare of herbage or covered with thick layers of silt.

Fight Center Swing Back West As Montana Gets Heavy Battle

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Is the pugilistic pendulum about to swing back west of the Mississippi river?

May be.

If the proposed battle between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons is staged at the little town of Shelby, Montana, Independence day, it may presage the return of the center of flatland to the land of the sunset.

Back in the old days ring history was written in the west. The famous Gans-Nelson fight was staged at Goldfield, Nev. Jim Jeffries fell before the skillful chatter and punching of Jack Johnson underneath the Nevada sun at Reno.

Carson City, Nev., was the scene of Fitzsimmons' victory over Jim Corbett on St. Patrick's day, 1897. Corbett went down before the sledge-hammer blows of Jim Jeffries in a glorious battle in San Francisco, August 14, 1903. Jeffries had dropped Curly Bob in the same city on July 25, a year previous.

Killbane Won Title There

Later on came the big battles of the little fellows on the Pacific coast. It was there that Johnny Killbane beat down Abe Attell and annexed the featherweight crown.

Then the flat tide moved eastward. The big money offered in and around New York called the leading millers. The popularity of the game reached its zenith in the east when Jack Dempsey met Georges Carpentier in "the battle of the century" in Boyle's Thirty Acres at Jersey City.

Within the past year the czaristic actions of Chairman Bill Muldoon of the New York state boxing commission and the perpetration of several flaccid by eastern promoters have soured easterners on the fight game. Now comes this $300,000 bid for Dempsey's services from the west.

In Heart of Oil Lands

Shelby lies in the wealthiest part of the west from a sporting standpoint. It is in the center of the rich oil fields, where millionaires are made overnight and spend their money freely.

The bout is being planned by Loy J. Molumby of the Montana club. The American Legion of Montana is said to be behind the battle—odd as that fact may appear in view of the legion's attitude toward Dempsey in the past. If it is staged there it will be fifteen rounds to a decision.

The final documents haven't been signed yet. Promoter Rickard or some other eastern hustler may knock the bout in the head with a bigger offer for Jack's services.

But if it is staged and proves a success you can look for a boom in the fight game in the glorious west.

Baptist World Alliance Plan Monster Conference In Stockholm Next Month

(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM.—Elaborate preparations are being made here for the World Congress of Baptists, known as the Baptist World Alliance, which is scheduled to convene in this city July 21-27. Several thousand official delegates are expected from the United States, Canada, South America, Central Africa, South Africa, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, the Philippine Islands, China, Burma and India, as well as from Great Britain, Sweden, Norway and the countries of continental Europe, including the new states of Latvia, Lithuania, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Reports coming to the committee of arrangements indicate that hundreds of American Baptists are planning to be present. A canvass of hotels throughout the city indicates that they will be filled to capacity. Hundreds of private residences, with characteristic Swedish hospitality, will be open to those who cannot be accommodated at the hotels.

The last meeting of the Baptist World congress was held in Philadelphia in 1912. The next meeting was originally scheduled for Berlin in the summer of 1916. This was cancelled because of the war, and post war developments have made it unwise to attempt to hold another congress until this year. Even as late as last month it was feared that the situation in the Ruhr might require another postponement, but in the judgment of the executive committee conditions now seem favorable for the holding of the congress.

Several topics of major importance will receive the attention of the delegates. An entire session will be devoted to a discussion of the report of a special commission, of which Dr. E. Y. Mullins, of Louisville, Ky., is chairman. This report is to formulate a pronouncement of Baptist fundamental principles and a restatement of the Baptist position. Indications are that this report is being awaited with considerable interest. The congress will also consider the question of international peace in which the League of Nations will doubtless figure prominently. It will discuss relief work and the need of help in Europe. It will also make a study of Baptist progress and achievements throughout the world since the last meeting of the congress in Philadelphia.

The late Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur, for 40 years pastor of Calvary Baptist church in New York, was president of the Baptist World Alliance and was to have presided at the Stockholm meeting. His death on February 23, 1922, creates a vacancy concerning which there is much speculation, as the constitution of the congress provides for a vice-president from each country, but indicates no seniority in appointment.

By special invitation of the Archbishop of Upsala, the congress will assemble for divine worship in the famous Upsala Cathedral on Sunday evening, July 22, when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. J. H. Shakespeare, D. D., of London.

Americans have been given prominent places on the program. Dr. G. W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, has been appointed to preach the congress sermon. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, of Louisville, will deliver an address on "Religious Liberty." Dr. E. A. Wilson, of Dallas, Texas, is to discuss the topic "The Future of Negro Baptists," and Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, of Rochester, will speak on "The New Opportunity for Women." Other important addresses will be delivered by Dr. J. H. Franklin of New York, Dr. J. P. Love of Richmond, Dr. J. A. White of Chicago, Dr. A. T. Fowler of Brooklyn, Dr. L. K. Williams of Chicago, Dr. T. C. Skinner of Columbia, while the closing address will be delivered by Dr. J. A. Francis of Los Angeles.

Reference Books on Farm Problems Put in Bank Library

(By the Associated Press)

TERRAL, Okla., June 2.—A reference library on agricultural subjects and a farmers' reading room has been established by a local bank.

Bulletins on crop progress, markets, new farming methods and discoveries, and other subjects of interest to farmers are posted regularly.

The establishment of the library has received the commendation of the state board of Agriculture which recently published a bulletin, suggesting that banks in other farming sections take similar steps to keep their farmer clients posted on agricultural developments.

Chinch Bugs.

Ernest E. Scholl, Extension Entomologist
To keep chinch bugs from mauling your corn or sorghum fields plow a deep lister furrow between the infested grain and the free field a little before harvest time.

Drag a log or keg back and forth through this furrow to make a fine dust at the bottom and sides. Dig post holes 20 feet apart in the furrows and pour coal oil over the collecting insects in these holes. If an ordinary plow is used throw the dirt toward the corn.

In case of frequent rains and cheap available road oil, drag a plowed strip between grain and corn fields until the soil is firm and smooth for a little more than a wagon width. Drive a heavy wagon along this strip and introduce road oil into the furrows made by the wheels.

Many of the bugs that have reached the corn field can be killed by collecting the insects on green cut corn placed in the bottom of deep furrows. These can be covered with a plow when many of the chinch bugs have congregated on the green baits.

On valuable row crops chinch bug infestation can be reduced by using contact sprays such as oil emulsion or nicotine solutions.

What the Spinner Wants.

Carl Williams in Farmer and Stockman.

During late April I spent a week in the states of Rhode Island and Massachusetts. I went there to meet the spinners of our southern cotton and talked to a number of exporters of American wheat. I wanted to find out at first hand two things; first, what kind of cotton the spinners want and are willing to pay best prices for and, second, what the chances are for a good export business in wheat this fall and winter. (For it is the amount of the export demand, you know, that fixes the American price for wheat.)

First and last, in meetings, groups and singly, I talked to more than 900 spinners. They unite in saying that what the spinners want first of all is cotton which will not waste in the mill. That means primarily cotton that is well ginned; cotton that was not hauled to the gin wet; cotton that was not snapped; cotton that is not full of trash; cotton that is not nepped by being picked too soon nor gin-cut by defective saws.

Some of these things are the fault of the farmer; some are the fault of the ginner, and some are partly the fault of the climate and the insect pests. Under the old system of street marketing they didn't make much difference. Buyers bought "hog round" anyway and every farmer got the same price regardless of staple or quality. Under the association system, however, the farmer's cotton can be sold on its merits, and the spinners are saving to the association that they will gladly pay the price for clean, well-matured cotton which will not waste in the mills. I was shown bales from which 100 pounds or more had to be picked out before the remainder could be sent to the spindles.

The spinners also say that they do not want cotton below seven-eighths of an inch in length and that, if they have to buy it, they will make somebody pay the penalty. What the most of them want and are always willing to buy is cotton running from one inch to one and an eighth inches in length of staple. Three-fourths of all the cotton goods manufactured in the United States are made from these staple lengths. These goods are the standard kinds such as sheetings, percales, cambrics, long cloth and the like, which are always in demand. Short cotton goes into only the cheapest goods and long cotton goes into extra quality goods whose demand is generally governed by the fashion of the moment. The sure market and the best average price, according to the spinners, is the "inch and better" cotton which can be produced under normal conditions on every southwestern farm.

It is worth while for every cotton farmer to consider these suggestions by the spinners. They are the fellows who buy cotton and, while they may not have everything to do with making the basic price, they do have everything to say with regard to the premiums paid. The natural result is that the kind of cotton they want will find a ready sale at a better price than cotton which they do not want.

Produce Market.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Receipts of eggs are heavier than the same time last year and prices are ruling lower on all markets. Arrivals are beginning to show summer defects and the demand is principally for the finer grading lots for storage and current use. Prompt collections and quick marketing will bring about the best results.

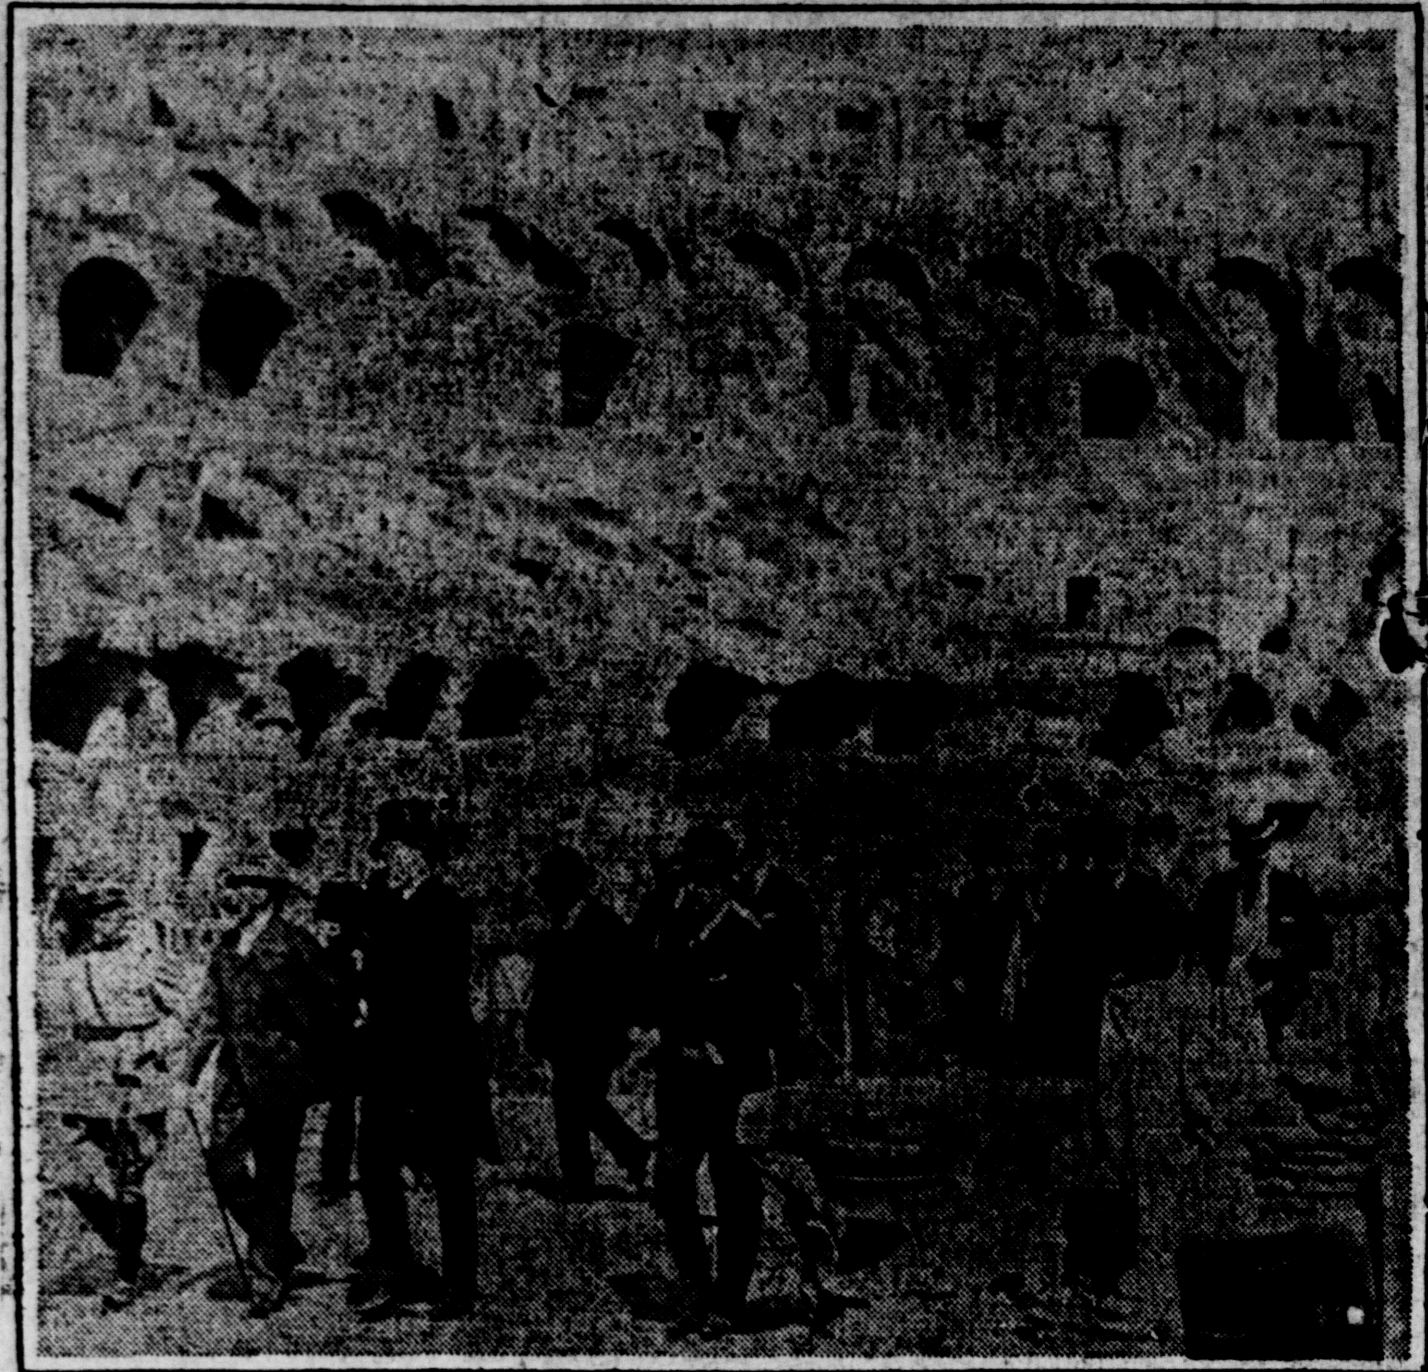

Unexpected heavy arrivals of live poultry on Eastern markets caused the market to break 4 cents a pound on live fowl. Heavy movement is reported in the country this week and prices are generally lower on account of the conditions prevailing on the consuming markets.

Trade in fresh dressed poultry as well as frozen is generally satisfactory.

There has been a reasonable increase in the movement of 1923 live broilers and prices are generally lower, in line with market conditions.

The make of butter is reported a little lighter than last year, due to the lateness in the season, and it is expected within the next two or three weeks the make will either equal or exceed that of a year ago. There is a good demand for current use, but the quality is not yet suitable for storage.

BRITISH KING, IN ROME, VIEWS RUINS OF ANCIENT EMPIRE

The market today on 90 score standards in Chicago is 38 3-4 cents, as compared with 38 3-4 cents a week ago and 33 3-4 cents a year ago.

There is a difference of 3 1-2 cents a pound between 88 and 90 score butter. Only a small portion of the carlots arriving will score 90, which shows the importance of better care and attention to the marketing of cream in order that the manufacturers may produce more butter that will score 90 on the Chicago market.

Better butter will mean improved results to the producer.

SWIFT & COMPANY.

No matter how much a man may be opposed to the co-operative plan of marketing cotton, he will have to admit that the organization has done much good by showing that a great saving can be effected through proper care of the cotton in the bale. Naturally if a bale is permitted to lie out in the weather two or three months, be ripped open for samples from one to three times and have several pounds picked out of the cut places it is going to be damaged very materially. Somebody must pay for this loss and naturally the farmer is the man who is made to foot the bill.

For years protests have gone up against the slipshod manner of handling American cotton, but matters went on as before. Now, however, when it can be shown that cotton properly cared for brings a much better price the farmers may well demand better care of their product and also protect better that which they may hold over.

The canning season is with us again and the housewives are busy with vegetables and berries with peaches and other fruit to come on a little later. A well filled pantry or cellar means some good eating next winter. In my own case my better half has been routing me out early in the morning to help pick dewberries, since berries must be fresh picked to give the best results. I think I have earned a few pies, anyway.

Albert Chamberlain, manager of the Farmers Exchange reports that his firm has handled 31 cars of hogs since January 1, averaging around 1,150 per car. That is more than $35,000 and the price has been low besides. When it is remembered that other shippers loaded hogs here and at the various towns of the county, it will be seen that the hog business is helping quite a bit in the way of bringing money into the county.

Agent Hill has been advised that Ernest E. Scholl, state extension entomologist, will be in Ada next Saturday to confer with everybody who is interested in bees. A meeting will be held at Mr. Hill's office at 1 o'clock. Bee keeping has made considerable headway in Pontotoc county during the past few years and a number of citizens have made very good money out of it.

A. & M. Scholarships Discontinued. There will be no county agricultural scholarships for the next two years, since no appropriations were approved for this purpose. Heretofore two $200.00 scholarships in the A. and M. college have been granted to each county. These scholarships were based upon a competitive examination which was conducted in the county superintendent's office the 1st Friday and Saturday in June. 230 scholarship students are now enrolled in the A. and M. college of which more than 200 have been club members. This announcement will meet with disappointment to a great many 608 1920 1921 1922 pure stock mares have already become candidates for the June examination.

WHAT KIND OF WOMEN DO MEN LIKE?

What kind of women do men like was a tea-cup conversation between Bebe Daniels, Leatrice Joy and Ruby de Remer the other day at luncheon in Miss Joy's dressing room at the Paramount picture studio on Long Island during the filming of "You Can't Fool Your Wife," which is the attraction at the McSwain theatre this week. It so happened that the studio press agent dropped in just in time to hear what the young ladies thought on the subject. Many people like to know what the stars talk about when they are not working, so the p. a. invited himself to have a cup of tea and here is what he heard:

"I don't believe men like these beautiful but dumb women any more," said Miss de Remer. "A pretty face with nothing under the hair does not appeal to men, in my opinion."

"Yes, but they do not like women to be too intellectual," broke in Miss Daniels. "No man likes to sit around and hear some girl prattle all about Freud and his theory of psychoanalysis. He likes the woman who is pretty, vivacious, understanding and responsive—and not without some brains. But too many brains scare the average man. He doesn't want a woman who knows more than he does. Most men like to be masters of the situation and if they think the woman is too smart they would never marry her. It's the girl who strikes the happy medium between beauty and brains that pleases the men."

And then Miss Joy who is featured in "You Can't Fool Your Wife" spoke: "It is the brainy woman who plays the part of the dumbbell that men like. This sort of woman always knows what to do and say at the right time. She is just one jump ahead of her husband, yet he never knows it. She has her own way, but at the same time makes it appear to be her mate's way."

All three then turned on the poor p. a. with their question: "What kind of women do men like?" Well, what kind do they like anyway?

Swedes to Visit Mexico. STOCKHOLM—Another step in Sweden's endeavors to expand her export markets is the sending of 15 merchants and foreign trade experts to Mexico for a tour of investigation. The Mexican government has offered to co-operate by paying all the travel expenses of the Swedish visitors while in Mexico.

The Swedes plan to buy petroleum, jute, precious metals, and certain tropical products, selling in return wood pulp, paper, cement, electrical equipment, cutlery, tools, and salt fish. The expedition starts at once and will spend about one month in Mexico.

Ada Amateurs Weather Errorless Game and Win From Okemah Champions

Taking advantage of the erratic playing of the Okemah baseball nine, Ada Amateurs stood on their unblemished error record and claimed a 3-0 victory in the first of a two-game series here Sunday afternoon at the City Park.

Five errors on the part of the visiting diamond stars coupled with timely hitting of the Ada club and air-tight fielding of the local nine resulted in the first win of the series.

Hitting honors fell in the middle-ground when both teams claimed four safe runs during the nine innings of the fray. Nichols, Okemah moundsman, claimed the hurling odds over Sealy, former Wilson twirler now on the Ada club, when he secured five strike outs from Ada batsmen with Sealy claiming only four.

The victory of the Ada club came in recognition of superior field work. Every play was staged with accurate deliberation and skill seldom produced by amateur clubs. Sensational plays on the part of Ada infielders soon became a usual feat.

Young and Rutledge claimed a stellar berth in fielding honors. Young's sensational stops at third prevented tallies in several instances. Rutledge covered first base like a blanket allowing neither high or low ones to mar his fielding record.

The Okemah club moved their nearest approach of the home plate in the fourth inning when C. Durham drove a long one to the right field fence and gained third sack. Durham remained on third while Young handled two hot ones to first and another passed the turning with a strikeout.

The Ada club scored in the first and fifth innings. Young passed to second when the first baseman erred and scored when shortstop allowed Rutledge's bounder to roll between his legs. The Ada squad scored two other scores in the fifth inning when Kirkpatrick singled and went to second when Warner's fly was muffed, both men advancing on Young's sacrifice and scoring on Rutledge's single.

The teams were slated for the second game of the series at the City park this afternoon. Moore of Okemah and Williams for Ada were expected to lead the pitching duel for the entertainment of the fans.
